SPOTLIGHT

At American Structurepoint, our people are driven to make a difference every day, and the work we do with our clients improves lives. Our expert team takes time to understand the bigger picture so there are no surprises as we complete our clients' vision.

Located outside of Austin, Texas, in an unincorporated area of Travis County, Biting School Road is critical for residents who travel in the area. Travis County officials needed to improve the road since flooding was often a problem, even in minor rainfalls.

American Structurepoint partnered with Travis County officials to develop several options to solve the challenges and improve safety for motorists. Our final design raised the road by 4 feet and replaced the aging metal pipes with larger concrete box culverts, which allows more water to flow through them.

Wanting a solution quickly, our Texas-based team coordinated extensively with Travis County leaders and other agencies to streamline the design, permitting, and construction process. With a host of resources and a local team of experts, American Structurepoint transformed the road within the aggressive, eight-month timeline.

At American Structurepoint, each project is more than a job to us. We own our clients' projects just like they do, and we are eager to bring our capabilities and horsepower to bear for the communities we serve.
